PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

I am an independent Environmental Health Officer in the South African National Defence under an arm of South African Military Health Services (SAMHS). I have been serving the organisation or practicing independently for three years, in Limpopo, Eastern Cape and Free State provinces, ensuring that soldiers who are currently my clients are working in a safe and healthy environment. The services I render to military personnel include Water Quality monitoring, Food safety and hygiene, Waste Management, Health surveillance of premises, Prevention of communicable diseases, Vector control (Pest control services), Environmental Pollution Control, Safe handling of chemical substances, Disposal of human remains and Operational Environmental Health. The aim is provision of a safe and sound military environment by means of preventative actions, within the framework of the applicable SANDF, SAMHS Orders and Directives as well as other applicable Acts and Legislations.
